Continuation of Substance of Interview including description of the general nature of what was discussed: Applicant argued that neither reference teaches the features of the claims, as the claims are directed to "WEB pages containing set of compressed information comprising static elements of the WEB page and a set of dynamic elements".

Applicant admitted, however, that Gupta discloses static information and a set of dynamic information related to a WEB page, but fails to specify COMPRESSED static information.

The examiner contended that the claimed compressed static information is nothing but "persistent data such as hyperlinks, graphics, and text that typically do not change between web page accesses" as disclosed in applicant's disclosure and as taught by Gupta (Col. 9, Lines 35-38).

The examiner contended that Hawkins, moreover, provides the deficient feature of compressed information as Hawkins discloses "compressed markup language representing a compressed description of information to be displayed on the screen" and such "static information is stored locally on wireless communication devices, as the static information does not change significantly over time" (Col. 9, Lines 15-2, Lines 48-50).

It was finally agreed that the language of the claims should be altered to remove the references from reading upon the claims..
